The CCAC paramedic program was the first step towards my future. As a newly graduated high school student with almost no prior experience in the field of medicine/emergency medicine, the program was able to prepare me in every way for my future career in paramedicine as well as simultaneously increasing my interest to further my medical career.

The program was light-hearted and fun, complete with a series of interesting, valuable lectures and hands on experiences. Both Professor Richard Lippert and Professor Neil Jones provided an open and welcoming learning environment at all times, with the offer of extra help/tutoring if needed (at their own expense none the less). Their enthusiasm, drive and passion to teach was evidently molded into the framework of the course and inspired at the very least myself, to perform/study/be better.

Professor Lippert especially was an extremely open, honest and welcoming source of information. Not only did he provide the last two semesters worth of education/lectures for us (almost entirely alone), he also was a good friend and role model. He continuously pushed us to study harder and was able to clarify course material in multiple different ways/means for every student's understanding. His complete knowledge and understanding of all material that he taught us was evident through this response to our daily barrage of questions and concerns as he was able to turn every question (no matter how ridiculous or obscure) into a teachable moment. I would consider him one of the best teachers/professors that I have ever that the honor/pleasure of knowing and learning from.

I can say with complete confidence that I would not have been able to survive such a busy/chaotic/stressful job at the young age of 19 if I did not have the foundations of knowledge that both Professor Lippert and Professor Jones provided me. I only have gratitude, appreciation and the best of wishes for the paramedic program and with that being said, Professor Lippert is an asset to the program. You will not be able to find another passionate, knowledgeable and kind/understanding person as him.

Best wishes always,
